School administration) devote to her highly lucrative avocation?

Could you feed your family of four, plus a cat, for $8 a week?

Could anybody, in these days of unbelievable inflation, come away from the supermarket with a week's groceries and household products, after toting up only eight shrunken dollars?

Justine (Jaye) Clark, 4 Forty-first St. in Carbondale, does...every week. And she does it without holding up the checker, or using food stamps.

How?

She's a refunder...a consummate refunder who cuts and clips, trades, begs and borrows cents-off coupons, and manufacturers' refunder who cuts and clips, trades, begs and borrows cents-off coupons, and manufacturers' refunder coupons and school administration) devote to her highly lucrative avocation?

About an hour or so a day, since by this time she has it down to a science.

She began her refunding and contest the children — Matthew, 5, and Melody, 2/2 — and then did it during a maternity leave when she had one of her children — Matthew, 5, and Melody, 2/2 — and then did it during a maternity leave when she had one of her children — Matthew, 5, and Melody, 2/2 — and then did it during a maternity leave when she returned to her teaching job. Even one of her students at saving through refunding, is willing to "share the wealth," i.e., share her money and borrows cents-off coupons, methodically catelogued in her coupon saver ("It's worth about $500 right now"); by buying nothing...but nothing...unless it's free or with coupons, or on sale...and most important of all, forgetting brand loyalties.

Soap powder is ...

"Look, soap powder is soap powder," Jaye points out succinctly. "And, if we want ice cream this week, and I can't get it on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits till on sale, or with money off, it waits

And yet Jaye Clark, successful as ane is a saving through refunding is swilling to sale, or with morey off, it waits till next week."

And yet Jaye Clark, successful as ane is a saving through refunding is willing to sale, or with correct or saving techniques with others. She is a member of Scranton Area Refunders Club, which meets be monthly on alternate Wednesdays, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the Community Roomat Viewmont Mail. (They're meeting tonght, Oct. 7, and again object. 21. You can drop in any time during the meeting, fourly offerested in getting started.)

Yet her compulsive hobby, pays off... to the tune of some $5,000 per annum. About $1,000 of this is in cash, and the rest in refunds, discounts and manufacturers' premiums.

Plus...Jaye's a contest buff who has "won every contest WCDL has ever had," together with a $2,000 cruise, a free trip to Disneyworld, $650 worth of meat...you name it, she's won it, or tried to win it.

Take, for example, the classy red 10 speed bike parked by her kitchen door. "Iwent into Wallis' (truiture store) to try to win it," says Jaye. "and while I was there. I bought the curio cabinet." The cabinet, a tall, handsome fixture in her dining room, which holds her collection of decorated Easter eggs. was purchased from Wallis' entirely with, you guested from Wallis' entirely with, you guested from Wallis' entirely with where postman, Joe Connors, who is happy when he reaches 4 Forty-first $5.(he empties most of his mailbag there), and at her bank, where she deposits all of the little refund checks she gets in the mail in an interest-bearing savings account.

"That interest," Jaye says proudly, "pays the $40 or $50 a month I spend on postage."

And how exactly does she manage to Spend only a few dollars each week to Spon-Rite personnel in "automatically doubling everything" means a big savings for Jaye, and artering for how the work of Spon and the reformation, and here the first of the post was a spend on the rest of the post was a spend on the rest of the post was a spend on

And how much time does this day homemaker and student (she's currently on sabbatical, attending the University of Scranton nights to obtain a degree in of Scranton nights to obtain a degree in only a few dollars each week to spend on the spend only a few dollars each week to spend only a few dolla

Several recent fires termed arson jobs

By PETE SMITH

Fire that damaged a vacant home on Dickson Avenue last Tuesday night in Carbondale has been termed "definitely arson", Bill Burrell, Carbondale fire chief told THE MIRROR. This is the fourth fire that the state police fire marshall has been called in to investigate in the past two weeks.

Other fires being investigated by the fire marshall include a Sept. 16 blaze that heavily damaged the home of Fred Tolerico, 97 Archbald St., Carbondale, the Sept. 21 blaze that earlied and a Sept. 26 fire that broke out at a vacant home owned by Eugene Ogazaly, located at 77 Williams Ave., Carbondale, the Superintendent of the Carbondale Area School District and a Sept. 26 fire that broke out at a vacant home owned by Eugene Ogazaly, located at 77 Williams Ave., Carbondale.

Chief Burrell noted that the Tolerico investigation is still containing and that its cause is still undetermined. He reported that the Calabro fire as arson. He is also labeling the Williams Avenue fire as "suspicious."

Firemen received the call of the Dickson Avenue blaze were the phone at 10 Hz by would have never escaped safely.

The Sept. 21 fire at the home of Liddy Calabro and petrolic wooden structure.

The first arriving units, according to the report found that fire had erupted in the mace received the divence of the first floor extending through the second floor and up through the command of Chief Burrell had the blaze under control quickly and were resupted safely.

The Sept. 21 fier at the home of Liddy Calabro for the command of Chief Burrell had the blaze under control quickly and were finally able to sunfit it out within two hours. Thirty-three firemen frought the blaze.

Chief Burrell said the fire marshall investigated by Eugene Ogazaly, located in a closet on the second floor in one of the bedrooms, fire authorities noted. The rest of the home received heavy smoke and water damage. Firemen frought the blaze were Engine 4 with Ed Gray and Truck limbary and the fire and felt that had someone been there they would have never

Council seeks state's help in preparing 1982's city budget

Carbondale City council Monday night passed a resolution asking the state's help in preparing the 1982 city budget.

The resolution, introduced by Councilman Albert "Abe" Calzola, officially requested the assistance and aid of the Municipal Consulting Services Division of the state's Department of Community Affairs.

The resolution passed with a 6-0 vote (Councilman Frank Greeco was absent).

There will be no cost to the city.
Following the vote, several members of council expressed their thoughts on the resolution.

Councilman Michael Tolerico explained that the city had earlier gotten help from the state agency, but rejected some of the suggestions it made.

"They suggested their thoughts on the resolution from the agency's help.

Out of my hands

Although none of the half dozen witnesses subpoenaed by Chelik's attorney, Lawrence Moran, and subsequently called by Attorney Michael J. Eagen Jr., who represented Itchkawitz, actually saw the guidance counselor strike Chelik, Yurgosky stated that "the state has established a prima facie case."

Yurgosky commended both senior students for their mature "handling of themselves on the stand at age 17," and thanked them for being present.

But when Chelik and his attorney, came to him the following Monday, asking for protection for Chelik from Itchkawitz, "I realized it was out of my hands administratively."

Ghigiarelli also testified that the "board meeting the night of Sept. 9, which I attended, was the first time I knew Chelik had applied, for the job of sophomore class advisor." He said he receives lists of applicants for faculty jobs that are posted, but Chelik's name never appeared on mine."

He testified that at about 9.25 on the morning of Thursday, Sept. 10, he was teaching 32 seniors in room 102 at the school, when Itchkawitz knocked on the

A Lakeland Junior-Senior High School guidance counselor, who had been accused of striking a fellow teacher the first morning of the school year, was found guilty of har rassment, and fined a total of $118 in a two-hour, $50-minute hearing Friday before District Magistrate Donald A. Yurgosky of Jermyn.

Charles E. Itchkawitz, who is also president of the teachers' union, and athletic director at Lakeland, had the simple assault tharge brought by Alexander J. Chelik, social studies teacher and mayor of the Borough of Mayfield, dismissed by the magistrate.

Yurgosky fined Itchkawitz, of 210 Carnation Drive, Clarks Summit, $50 plus costs, together with $40 restitution for Chelik's medical bills.

High esteem

In rendering his decision after the lengthytension-wrought session, Yurgosky noted that he "holds both men, Chelik and Itchkawitz and that the defendant had never been in trouble before. He also stated that "it's a shame that the problems of the Lakeland School District cannot be left to its administration, but these things do happen."
